GÊNERAL GRANT.

His Visit to New York---Overwhelming Popular Enthusiasm.

The Lieutenant General reached Nev York on Wednesday morning, and was almost overwhelmed by the popular enthusiasm. Many of the incidents of his progress, as given in the newspapers of that city, are quite interesting. We give some of them

The excitement began in Jersey City, and the scene on the ferry boat is thus described: CROSSING NORTH RIVER.

We never saw even a ferry boat so thronged, jammed and stuffed with human beings, as was the handsome vessel which beings, as was the handsome vessel which bore the Lieutenant General from New Jer-sey to Manhattan Island. Decks, guards and wheel-houses were black with human beings. Here again the General tried to escape observation, by retiring into the dark carriageway of the boat, but he soon concluded that concealment was impossible, and came out, upon the open deck among and came out upon the open deck among the crowd. Here he lit his cigar, smiled good-humoredly or conversed a little when addressed, and appeared to enjoy the early morning hour and the glorious vistas which opened up the rushing stream as the fog lifted.

During the passage a long-haired, Southern-looking gentleman, who from the blueness of his nasal appendage probably hailed from Acadia, excited the arger of a brawny Irishman by asserting in a very offensive manner that Gen. Grant was smaller in mind than in person, and that smaller in mind than in person, and that "You lie!" said the Irishman, coolly.

"Sir, sir!" exclaimed the chivalrous g tleman, fumbling in his breast, where he intended to have a concealed weapon. "Are you a Southerner?" asked the Irish-

"I am," replied the other with pomposi-

"I am proud to say that I have been, and am now on my way to the friendly shores of England."

"Well," continued his interlocutor ase carry this to the old country for with compliments of a Fenian," and with that he hit the Southerner a crushin blow on the snout, which brought the ruby and made the traducer of Gen. Grant mos nappy to sneak away and avoid further

Having arrived safely at the Astor House the General began to receive visitors, wh pressed in in crowds: HOW THEY CONDUCTED.

Very many callers contented themselves with a simple shake of the hand and a cour-teous "Good morning, sir;" but a great teous "Good morning, sir;" but a great many sensible working people grasped the General's hand with severe and painful vigor, causing him absolute suffering, and at times eliciting rebuke. Others made little speeches. The more frequent were ke the following:

"God bless you, General." "God grant you a long life, sir," "It does me good to see you."
"How are you, Unconditional?

"Have you a photograph with you?"

The people honor themselves to-day

"Don't let them use you up, General."
"How's my old commander?"
"You don't remember me, sir, but I'll never forget you.'s One old gentlemad had prepared a little oration, and had speceeded in reaching the third or fourth sentence, somewhat platitudinous, when the policeman gently took him by the arm, and led him to the door. him by the arm, and led him to the door. A lady asked the General if he knew her brother, Lieut. —, of the — Massachusetts, and seemed somewhat surprised to learn that he did not. A clergyman from Jersey City, a wag, told the General, as he shook him too heartily by the swollen hand, to "trust in God, and keep the powder days."

How HE BORE IT.
A good-natured man is the Lieutenan General. From early morn till after one, he was shaken and bored, and bored and shaken. The animus of the majority who called, was respect and sincere regard for the soldier who had done so much for the country. Consequently it was to be expected that he would be willing to endure much that was mentally boresome, physically wearying and personally unpleasant, but an iron frame, sinews of steel and bones of rock would hardly have sufficed for the occasion. At times the General ordered the doors closed while he rested, but after a brief interval, he was "up and at 'em again."

With a cigar in his mouth, continually he puffed away, apologizing to the ladies for so doing, but taking a fresh one every few minutes, until, about 11 o'clock, there came such a rush of crinoline that he, for the such a rush of criatine that he, for the time being, left off the practice. It was suggested that it would be a good idea for him to change hands occasionally, to which he replied that he wanted "to keep one hand for future use." In response to a query about his speaking at the Cooper Inquery a yout his speaking at the Cooper institute, he said: "I have made up my mind about that many years ago. I never have spoken, and I am too old now to begin; not that I feel so very old, either, but I can't speak, and I certainly shall not dictate anything for any one else to say for me.

"The General doesn't falk," said a little figzly-hearded theologian in the group: "he frizzly-bearded theologian in the group; "he doesn't talk, he fights;" to which there being no evident reply, none was made, and the little man went away.

An elderly gentleman, with a new hat, which he wore all the time he was in the room, stood for a long while at the General's right hand, and at every convenient opportunity put in some sensible remark about the heat of the weather, the wonderopportunity put in some sensible remark about the heat of the weather, the wonderful crowd, the gratification it gave him, &c., &c.; to all of which the General gave half an ear, while the other portions of his auricular department and his entire physical system were devoted to the crowd.

Says:

"Mr. Wendell Phillips and other prominent men in the free States are much alarmed at the political prospect in the South, and do not hesitate to express their fears. They assert that without universal suffrage the South and the Union are not Correspondence,

A TOUCHING INCIDENT. and yet a very ordinary one, transpired during the levee. The door was opened and a soldier, supported on two crutches approached the group that had encircled Gen. Grant, who was seated on a chair. His face was very pale and evidently suf-fering with pain. The soldier halted, when the General, noticing him, rose and, taking him by the hand, said: "You were in the army?" "Yes, General," replied he, "I was in the—th battery and was wounded was in the —th battery and was wounded at Petersburg. I can't get a discharge nor a furlough. I want to go home, and I should very much like a furlough for sixty days." "Well, we'll give you one. Col. Parker just take this man's name and case, make out a furlough for sixty days and give it to him." The poor soldiers who had approached the group unaided by any one, who had stood waiting patiently until the who had stood waiting patiently until the General was comparatively at leisure, who had been in no way recognized by any of the crowd, was at once surrounded by the people; one offered him a chair, another some water, one asked him his name and another his story—so that he had quite a another his story—so that he had quite a pleasant call, much pleasanter in fact than he would have had had the General not initiated his kind treatment.

THE AUTOGRAPH MANIA
was the most comical outgrowth of the occasion. A very modest, pretty girl from Brooklyn, who had a pleasant chat with the General, asked him for his autograph. Stepping across the room to the table, he wrote one. Instantly he was surrounded by men and boys, ministers, lawyers, la-dies, girls, customhouse officers, telegraph boys, officers, soldiers—all with cards or envelops or pieces of paper on which they begged should be written his name. The red and swollen hand which had been roughly treated by many thousands of men and women, shook while it traced upon the paper

U. S. GRANT, Lieutenant General U. S. A. So absolutely inconsiderate were these de that, although thousands of their fellow-citizens were waiting without, impa-tient for their turn, they poked card after card before him, and insisted upon the favor which he, ever good-natured, kindly granted. Gen. Dix secured a very good signature for the album of a friend, but aside from that, only cards, envelops, and craps of paper were used.

Having endured this sort of thing about as along as it was possible, the General went out on the balcony and bowed his regards to the crowd, after which he took a ride up Broadway. On his return a dinner for about thirty was laid in a private room at the Actor House of which Mr. Grippell at the Astor House, at which Mr. Grinnell and Mr. Greeley made short speeches. General Grant, however, was not then, nor at any time, beguiled into speech-making. After dinner he took a second drive, visited the rooms of the Union League Club, and in the evening attended the meeting at the Cooper Institute, finally concluding the day's work with a serenade, when he was again compelled to show himself at the window.

Prince Napoleon on American Affairs and the Foreign Policy of France. Prince Napoleon has delivered a remarkable address at Ajaccio, which embodied not only an historical sketch of the career of Napoleon I, but a political commentary applicable to the circumstances of the present day. An important question touched upon by the Prince was that of foreign pol-On this he said:

"One of the most salient points of the empire is its foreign policy. The expansion of France prior to the empire, and which the republic had bequeathed to it, was one of e chief characters of the revolution. Im pirit of aggression of the republic or the ambition of the empire to which one ought to refer this than the hatred of Europe, and above all the inexorable logic of facts. The Old World and the New found themselv face to face; a struggle was inevitable throughout history has progress even been attained without the sanction of force? What great progress has ever been effected without also, unhappily, being stained with blood? The establishment of the Roman world, its fall, Christianity, the Founder of which voluntarily shed his blood on the cross and, in our own times; the establishnent of reform, the emancipation of Amer a, and now the abolition of slavery in the could the French Revolution, which was not only for France but for humanity, which was the definite end of the middle age and feudality, be established without the con rming sacrifice of human blood?"

Prince Napoleon showed that his unch had always been in favor of Italian unity He wished to re-create Italy, to unite in everal States into one independent State with Rome for its capital. He had, how ever, many obstacles to overcome, and he had said that he required twenty years to re-establish the Italian nation. Three things were opposed to his design—the possessions of foreign powers, local feeling and the Pope's residence at Rome; and the Prince pointed out how these three obsta cles were successively overcome, until "all was ready to create the great Italian coun-

The Prince next proceeded to demonstrate that a great many considerations, political and commercial, decided Napoleon "to make the friendship of the United States an axiom of his policy." To do this he appealed to their generous sentiments by going into mourning for Washington, and by ceding to them, or selling them. Louisiana ding to them, or selling them, Louisian or eighty millions of francs. The Prince at the same time pointed out that Napoleon said he foresaw that France would be compelled to abandon her colonies in the At-antic, and he drew attention to the singuar circumstance that one of the Minist who signed the treaty of cession was Mr. Monroe, the author of the famous doctrine that the governments of Europe must hold no possessions in North America. The Prince went on to say: "Let us ardently desire the pacification of the American Union, and not suffer ourselves to be influnced by those fallacious arguments which would transform the character of a revol ondemned by right, by reason, and by in terests, supported with courage, but which is only the unjustifiable effort of an aristocracy of some few thousands of slaveholders against the constitution, the most liberal and the most respected power of any power in the world." ower in the world.'

Freedom of Speech. John Mitchell, during the war the writer of the most bloodthirsty articles published by the Richmond press-at first connected with the Enquirer, and afterward with the with the Enquirer, and afterward with the Examiner—in both exerting all his skill and power, as a journalist, to ridicule the "Yankees," and excite against all who fought for the Union the undying hatred of the Southern people—John Mitchell, who long ago sighed for a Southern plantation, well stocked with fat negroes, and who hur-ried from France to give all the aid in his power to the Southern Confederacy, and put his sons in her armies, where one of them, at least, was killed—this individual has made his appearance in New York, and has already a comfortable situation on one of the New York dailies, viz: the News. This seems to be about as strong a case of personal liberty and freedom of the press as the most exacting advocate of the largest license could desire. The New York Pos says it is all well, and strongly urges the fullest enjoyment of the right of saying what we please. The traitors being whipped, let them talk. But (and here is the ped, let them talk. But (and here is the point), this beautiful and precious thing of liberty of speech and person and the press, must not be confined exclusively to one section of the country. If traitors are to be heard in the North, the Abolitionists must be heard in the South. If sheets are free to publish treason in New York, other sheets country free to publish abolition. must be equally free to publish abolition-ism in Charleston. The Post pertinently safe-and we agree with them that equal rights for all men before the law is the only security for us all. But their arguments, however sound and able they may be, do not have the effect they ought to have, benot have the effect they ought to have, because they are delivered in the wrong place, and to the wrong people. These gentlemen speak in Boston—but they ought to speak in New Orleans. They write in New York—but they ought to write in Charleston, cr Mobile, or Richmond. They lecture in New Explain the word with the control of the word with the word England towns and villages—but their elo-quence would find as ready listeners, and neet with far greater success, if they would address the Southern people in their homes, "It was a great mistake that we eyer gave up the right of free speech and free discussion in the South-but it will be a still greater mistake if we do not, at once, resume it. The tyranny over opinion which the slaveholders so long exercised in the Southern States, forced Northern men into a habit of saying that in the free States which they were not permitted to say in the South. That is a habit we must get rid of as quickly as possible—and just now is a favorable opportunity to assert the right of free discussion in every Southern State."

This is good doctrine. Freedom of speech in and throughout the South means the abolition of slavery, for slavery could never bear the light. We will be called upon to observe whether the class of politicians who, in the North, during the war, were the most demonstrative in the advocacy of the largest liberty of speech, will distin-guish themselves by zeal in asserting and maintaining the proposed application of their doctrine to the South.

Women's Rights in the East. In the last number of the Athenæum, of London, we find the following sketch of the position occupied by women in Mohammedan country:

Let us look, in fancy, upon a Moslem hareem, such as may be found in a thousand cities of Egypt, Persia, and India. In Iscities of Egypt, Persia, and India. In Islam, the law, being religious, takes note of a thousand trifles which, in England, being pagan, it leaves alone. That hareem life, which so many of us fancy to be wholly lawless—a thing of eunuchs, poison, bowstrings and abominations—is found, on opening the law-books, to be controlled by host of regulations, nearly all of them contrived for the protection of women's rights. Some of us dream that a hareem is a jail, an Oriental wife a slave. A little acquaintance with Mohammedan law would cause the sticklers for woman's rights to open their eyes rather wide. Is the British female better off than her sister of Egypt or Bengal? Is she more tenderly considered by the legislator and the judge? Has she more freedom to dispose of herself, and of Ler property? Blackstone wrote a sorry paragraph on this point, which has been a joke to three generations of Templers. The Commentaries of Sir William are a good

In one short chapter of a dozen pages Blackstone expounds the legal relations of an English husband and an English wife; while in the Hidayah, which may be loose-ly described as the Moslem Blackstone, the chapters on the home relations of an Oriental husband and wife are long enough to fill a large volume. The English code may be briefly, and not untruly, said to explain hat, unless a woman is specially protected by legal settlement, marriage makes ber a slave—in some respects worse than a slave, since it extinguishes all her individual rights, and transfers her person and her property to the man she weds, to abuse and property to the man she weds, to abuse and squander as may seem good in his eyes; and it does all this so thoroughly, that even should the ill used lady procure a divorce from her brutal husband, on account of cruelty, desertion, and adultery combined, she might have to retire, a cripple and a pauper, from a house to which she had come youthful, beautiful and rich. Nothing of this kind could occur in a Mussulman country. All the domestic relations man country. All the domestic relations narriage, tosterage, repudiation, slavery parentage, and maintenance-are, in Islam.

Just as in England since the reign of William the Fourth, a Moslem marriage is a civil affair only; requiring no mollah, and no religious rite; a contract which may be lissolved by a civil process. It is a free partnership, for mutual comfort and enjoyment between man and woman. But, unlike the English ceremony, it confers no right on the man over the woman's prop-erty. The Mohammedan lady retains her separate individuality in her married state. She is not placed in the position of a feme covert; but remains an independent and responsible being, with the same power of receiving and disposing of property which she enjoyed in her spinsterhood. She may sue and be sued without the concurrence of er husband, and without having recours our English fiction of a nearest friend. he may receive a pension. She can sign bond. She might execute a trust. It is true that, in a Mohammedan country, a woman may be divorced for a tri-fling cause, perhaps for no cause beyond the whim of a husband tired of her temper or satiated with her charms. Yet divorce is ss common in Islam than would be imagless common in Islam than would be imag-ined from the ease with which it may be ef-fected. The record is not kept with any care, but we have heard it said in Cairo that final separation between man and wife s rarer in that city than in Berlin, and unour new Divorce Court, than in London. Human nature, according to the opinio of an English widow who married a Beda-ween sheikh—is pretty much the same in all countries; and few men care to separate from the love of their youth, the mother of their children, unless for such crimes against the marriage bond as would part the English husband from his English wife. But, besides the bulwark of early love and acquired habits, a Moslem lady is protected against her husband's caprice, by a very formidable bond. Few Orientals can afford to divorce their wives under any attainable difference of temperament or temperature. Every wife is dowered. On a wife being repudidated by her husband her dower must be paid. It is always re latively to the husband's means, a considerable sum; and thus polygamy and divorce, though the law permits them, are practi-cally confined to those richer classes, who, in every country of East or West, contrive to evade the stricter moral rules. The husband, too, is bound to maintain his wife ac-cording to her rank; and so sternly is this part of the bridal compact enforced against a careless husband, that the husband, if a slave, may be sold for money on which the wife may live.

THE ENGLISH SLAVE TRADE,-I find, in a quiet corner of a London paper, some sta-tistics of the English slave trade, in the modified form in which it has been carried on for the last twenty years. It is generally supposed in England that when a cargo of negroes is captured from some slaver, on the coast of Africa, the emancipated slaves are provided with a suit of clothes apiece, a Bible, some tracts, a dozen of Bass' pale ale, and a five-pound Bank of England note, and set ashore on the coast of Ashantee or Dahomey to enjoy their freedom. It appears, however, that the emancipated negroes, instead of being set ashore in this fashion, are conveyed to St. Helena, and thence shipped in assorted cargoes as emigrants or apprentices to various English colonies in the tropics. In this way, since 1843, Jamaica has received 18,500; Trinidad, 40,000; British Guiana, 99,000; Mauritius, 313,500. About five in a hundred finally leave for somewhere, and are supposed to be engaged in the work of African civilization. The officers and crews of the African squadron are stimulated by large bounties, paid by the British Government, to take as o'clock this afternoon, in the Court House, to listen to a speech from Gov. Bramlette, who happened in our place as a witness in court. His speech fully sustained his reputation as an orator. It has been our good fortune as an orator. It has been our good fortune to hear most of the great men of the present day, on the platform, in the pulpit, and in the forum, and we can truly say that Gov. Bramlette is in no wise inferior to many men of greater pretensions in the oratorical art. It is seldom we hear as chaste and correct languages from one who have and correct language from one who has trained himself on the Kentucky stump, and at the Kentucky bar. But the occasion was one of those momentous ones which make "all elaborate oratory contemptible," and the Governor fully understanding this we shall not attempt even a synopsis of his speech, but confine our report to those portions which were the most forcible. EXTREMISTS DENOUNCED.

The Governor considered the ambition of extreme Northern and Southern men the cause of the war, whose ravages and horrors he painted with the skill of a great artist, and pointed out slavery as the means found ready at hand by which they hurled war

SLAVERY DENOUNCED. And here if he somewhat confounded cause and means we consider it immaterial, since he made slavery appear odious. The negro had been the theme of politicians for thirty years—he had never heard a political speech in which the negro was not the key-note—never read a political paper in which he did not figure—never cast a vote even for a constable that was not supposed in some way to affect his status, and he was, now that the political negro had been the innocent instrument of the most terrible war of all time, in favor of removing him, and sweep-ing him from the face of the whole land—so that hereafter ambition may find no weapon for parricidal blows.

HE FAVORS THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMEND-MENT.

The Governor then proceeded to discuss the Kentucky phase of the slavery question, and boldly declared for the adoption of the amendment. His reasoning upon this point was imbued with the highest philosophy, and convinced many hitherto opposed to his views. o his views.

DEBRIS OF THE INSTITUTION. The question of policy in regard to the debris of the institution left upon the soil, was ably handled and most happily illustrated. Would the sensible man let the carcass of a dead horse remain before his door, tilling his nostrils with stench because he could not make the guerrillas who killed him bury him? Wouldn't the traveler with asafotida in his pocket, finding himself pursued by a pack of wo'ves, throw the stuff away sooner than be devoured by them? Wouldn't a good ship's crew cut loose the ropes of a broken, fallen mast, and let it drop into the sea, rather than bear such a useless encumbrance through the storm? Such were the pertinent questions put to the self-interest of Kentuckians, and the answers were visible on many a countenance, reluctant, to be sure, but stil

GOVERNOR'S FORMER PREJUDICES. The Governor honestly confessed that he had grown up from boyhood, fulled with all the local prejudices of the day in favor of slavery and against Abolitionists, and that even now he felt it hard to repress their feeble lingering remains as he contemplated the relentless grasp of Federal power upon the throat of his old favorite. But we are more than happy to say that from some parenthetical sentences, uttered rather sotto voce, we could see that his intellect and his moral power are fast grasping the highest and most noble aspect of the subject. For instance, in speaking of having lost some of his own slaves he paused and said. "May his own slaves, he paused and said: "May be I haven't lost much after all. If I had had no slaves I might have trained up my boys to greater habits of industry.' SLAVERY DEAD,

Here is a true gleam—an auroral flash that bids us look soon for the full round sun. The light is coming gradually, Gov-ernor, and will soon flood your great mind with all its genial radiance. And we would have it so, for we do not want you unhors ed like Saul at this juncture, by a too sudden conversion. When slavery is dead, and the mourners have put off their black, and have gone cheerfully into the new, bright, fields of prosperity and virtue, which lie in the land of freedom, you will, with all who have heads to comprehend and hearts o feel the truth, regard what your opponents call robbery now, as one of the grand ompensating results of the war. The weeping away of slavery, though by the iry broom of Mars, will leave the path of true progress far less obstructed than be BETTER PHILOSOPHY TO PREVAIL. The death of the institution will enrich the soil a thousand fold. The cities of the South will increase in size and beauty; its ivers be whitened with richer and more swift-winged commerce, and its schools and churches dispense a better philosophy and purer religion. LAVE LABOR-ITS BLIGHTING INFLUENCE There was an argument, too, of the Gov ernor's which properly characterizes slavery. It was this: Out of a population of about 0900, Marion county, for instance, has about 500 slaveholders, who owned about 3,000 slaves when the war broke out. These laves badly tilled large tracts of the best and, and the stalwart, young white man, whom it was for the interest of the State o keep within her borders, went away into some Western State to add to its wealth by his superior skill and power. This was wrong, and plainly showed why Kentucky is so far behind her sister States in all the developed elements of greatness. Here is nother true ray of light.

BAD POLITICAL ECONOMY.

It reveals the miserable political economy of the slave relation. You have taken two grand steps, Governor, in the right direction. Already you admit that slavery injures the physical and moral character of the young and drives desirable white labor away. With these two elements of depresents of the young and drives desirable white labor away. ciation, do you not think it would be hard to prove that the Government has commit-ted such a grand larceny as your puny op-ponents charge upon it? May it not indeed come out at last that not even a petty larceny has been committed, but that the only ealing done has been that of a rich bless ing stealing in upon us "unawares" to make happy and beautify the land.

CONSERVATIVES" TRYING FOR A NEW REV-OLUTION. Every true Union man there most heartly thanked the Governor for properly de-nouncing this new party now attempting to ride into power upon the waves of bsd passions. He spoke of its members as "these people who are trying to get up a second revolution." That is it, Governor, you have characterized the attempt properly, and as you say they may not mean. and as you say, they may not mean to again involve the land in war, but they talk just like the men who did mean it and accomplished their purpose in the ter-MUNROE & HATCH.

rible past. GOOD ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN, Instead of telling the young men who have returned from the Southern army, filled with admiration and wonder at the greatness and power of the Government, that even their prowess could not conquer, that their fathers have been robbed by the power which is now to protect them, he told them that it was indeed a great Government, which the South could not conbe engaged in the work of African civilization. The officers and crews of the African squadron are stimulated by large bounties, paid by the British Government, to take as many of these negroes as possible, and it has occurred to us that it is just possible, that a few cargoes may be shipped from the coast just for the purpose of supplying ships with prize money, and sugar planters with labor. The English are a very philanthropic people, and would not willingly force anybody, white or black, to work more than was necessary to a good digestion; but, STAY AT HOME REBELS.

It was not the returned rebel whom he so much feared, but that cowardly creature whose form trembled and whose lips closed

General Orders, No. 109. The prisoners of war at the several depots in the North will be discharged, under the following regulations and restrictions:

I. All enlisted men of the rebel army, and petty officers and seamen of the rebel navy, will be discharged upon taking the as the oath of allegiance.

II. Officers of the rebel army, not above the grade of captain, and of the rebel navy, not above the grade of lieutenant—except such as have graduated at the United States military or naval academies, and such as held a commission in either the United States Army or Navy at the beginning of the rebellion—may be discharged upon taking the oath of allegiance.

III. When the discharges hereby ordered are completed, regulations will be issued in respect to the discharge of officers having higher rank than captain in the army, or oath of allegiance.

higher rank than captain in the army, or lieutenant in the navy.

IV. The several commanders of Prison Stations will discharge each day as many of the prisoners hereby authorized to be discharged as proper rolls can be prepared for, beginning with those who have been longest in prison, and from the most remote points of the country; and certified rolls will be forwarded daily to the Commissary General of Prisoners of those so discharged. The oath of allegiance only will be administered, but notice will be given that all who desire will be permitted to take the oath of amnesty after their re-lease, in accordance with the regulations of the Department of State respecting the am-the military power of the rebels is to be instantly followed by a return of law and order are egregiously mistaken. Those who dream that the political heresies entertained by the "natural leaders" of the South and their Northern confederates, are extinguished, are indulging in a delusive vision. Those who assume that the destruction of slavery annihilates at once the barbarism, ignorance, and lawlessness, which were the consequences and accompaniments of slavery, are sadly deceived. Those who believe that the restoration of trade and commerce is to be a panacea for all the hurts of the terrible conflict, must regard Mammon as a miracle-worker indeed. Those who think pacification and reconstruction easy merely because Lee has surrendered and Jeff Davis has been indicted, only show how poorly they understand the cause of the insurrection, and how hard it is to root them out.

Has all been accomplished which is essential to these ends? Clearly not.

of twenty thousand rebels who surrendered, only two thousand could read or write. From this it is fair to infer that a majority of the whites in the seceded States were like the eighteen thousand, who had not acquired the elementary means of judging of public affairs, and so were open to the deceptions of demagagues and ambitious politicians. The character of these intriguing and influential guides of the blind masses is now plainly understood. This statement shows how small is the amount of the trustworthy material out of which to build up patriotic communities, where why colonize the negro when his labor is needed on the soil where he has worked from infancy. If white people found it agreeeble to live with him or by him in a state of servitude, is there any thing in the state of freedom so offensive as to require his expatriation? The civil war is finished as a great war The insurgent States can be watched and held under military rule. But how are they to be wisely governed? Who shall govern then? To what extent can they be left to govern themselves? These are the questions for the hour, and they are momentous questions. There will be no great difficulty in reinstating and reasserting the Federal authority in the section so recently in arms against it. But to what degree will it do to permit that section to be represented in the exercise of that authority? How far can it It was recently stated that out of a force

But something beyond this is demanded as the price of the blood that has been shed. The insurgent States must be brought into an honest and abiding concord with the other States. To do this they must be held under the direct or indirect guardianship of the stronger party to the fight, until their moral, social, and industrial character is made intelligently democratic. This is the principle -whatever may be the methods employed-which cannot prudently be lost

He had been in company with a man dressed in soldier clothes during the fore part of the night and such a man was seen to enter his office after he had retired.

LOOK OUT .- The city and citizens should for some time to come take unusual precautions against burglars and highway robbers. Those hereabouts without work, and not disposed to work, are numerous and increasing. The late rebellion's demoraliz-ing results are not done away in a duty. A uniformed police, strong and watchful enough to protect all good citizens at all hours, is a "military necessity."

WOODLAWN RACES-LAST DAY. - We must confess that we were sadly disappointed Saturday at the result of the great three-mile race. Every one who visited the track expected to see a well-contested and overline race. and exciting race. The announcement that Asteroid and Loadstone were entered for the race drew a great many visitors, and fully five thousand went out on the various trains during the day. Dr. Weldon also entered a horse for the race called Dr. Linsey, but, being a stranger, he did not attract much attention. At the tap of the bell all three appeared on the track, and seemed to be in fine condition. The docility of Loadstone caused his friends to shake their heads ominously, and Mr. Harper, his owner appeared very unexy. his owner, appeared very uneasy. No one knew that he was given to "sulks" but a few of the knowing ones, and his outside friends continued to back him pretty liberally in the pools. At the tap of the drum a good start was made, with Asteroid in the lead. Linsey second, and Loadstone lead. reaching the first quarter, Loadstone stop-ped and could not be made to move a step. 2d mille 3d mile... SECOND RACE.

This was a handicap race for which there were four entries. Harper's Easter, Ford's Holton, Weldon's Legal Tender and Frankin. In the pools before leaving the city Easter was the favorite, but after arriving on the track Holton and Legal Tender reportingly became favorites. On the first spectively became favorites. On the first heat Holton got the start, closely followed by Legal Teuder and Easter, Franklin last. Holton made a good run and kept the lead throughout, notwithstanding the efforts of Legal Tender to pass him. The heat was made in 1:51%. Legal Tender second, Easter third, and Franklin shut out.

SECOND HEAT. Holden was now the favorite, at odds o two to one against Easter. At the tap of the drum Legal Tender was some thirty or forty feet ahead and gained the inside. He kept the lead throughout, closely pushed by Holton, Easter close up. Time, 1:51%.

THIRD HEAT.
Easter's friends looked blue after this eat, but still kept betting, knowing that if they could take the next heat they could win the race. A good deal of dissatisfac-tion was expressed at the manner in which Legal Tender had gained the lead in the last neat. The start was a splendid one in this heat, and the lead was gained by Easter before reaching the first quarter, which raised a wild shout among her friends. On she went, still gaining till she reached the half mile post, when she was fifteen yards ahead. She came home in that position under a steady pull in 1:56. Her friends were now offering the largest odds of the day, with very few takers, as it was evident that nothing but an accident would pre-vent her from winning the race.

FOURTH HEAT.
While the horses were drying off a heavy shower came up, and in a few minutes the track was quite heavy. The rain did not stop falling, and the "go" was given with Easter about a length behind, but under a good drive passed both her competitors before reaching the half mile pole, starting about five lengths. From this point ahead about five lengths. From this point there was no further contest, and the game houts of her many friends,
Before we close we must compliment the Woodlawn Association for the able manner in which the weeks' sport was conducted. During the whole meeting we did not hear a murmur. Every one was satisfied that the races were carried on in the strictest manner, and that no one won a purse unless he was justly entitled to it. We congratulate the Association in having the serrices of such an excellent Secretary as Wm. Robbed.-Dr. Wm. E. Gilpin, who has E. Milton. He is faithful and energetic. and when he works everything goes on like clock-work.

> THE GREAT REBELLION. - Harper Brothers have issued No. 11 of their "Folio Pictorial History of the Great Rebellion." This part is illustrated with fifty fine wood engravings of maps, battle scenes, &c., on a large scale, and portraits of twelve of our veteran Army and Navy officers, who have shed themselves in the war. (Re ceived by Civill & Calvert.

> MERITED PROMOTION.—Brig. Gen. Robert Allen, Chief Quartermaster at this point, has been breveted Major General. We know of no officer that deserved promotion more than Gen. Allen. He has performed the various duties of his office with admi-rable tact and ingenuity, and in this con-tributed largely to the success of our armies in the field. Every one who has had business with the General speak of him with admiration. Approach him when you may, and Le dispatches your business with ease and celerity. We think he is an ornament to the army, and congratulate him on his well-earned additional star.

> ---STREET RAILWAYS .- We hope soon to see the City and the Portland R. R. Companies reconciled, and their cars plying wherever most needed. We have no pecuniary interest in either, and desire both to prosper. Both lines, properly located and managed, will prove very remunerative and incalculably beneficial to the city. Both are needed. Fair competition and friendly rivalry be tween them should be encouraged. If too near together, one or both might break down; neither would so accommodate the public or pay so well, as if farther apart. Let them be so laid as not to clash, but to accommodate all or the great majority ughout the city and promote the whole city's growth.

DEATH OF AN ELEPHANT .- The performing elephant Hannibal, the property of Van Amburg, the lion tamer, is no more. This celebrated animal has, for over fifty years, been in the show business, and much to his credit we have never heard of a single instance where he left his trunk for his board. Hannibal in his younger days was very well behaved, but as he grew old he became almost unmanagable; in fact for the past ten years he was kept constantly chained. He killed several of his keepers, and near Baton Rouge, La., a few years ago, after killing his keeper and horse, and a camel, he cleaned out the entire menagerie, upsetting cages, destroying wagons, canvass, &c. He continued his work of destruction until a six-pounder cannon was brought to bear upon him, and an attempt was made to kill him. He was conquered, but never subdued. Hannibal often indulged in his innocent a:nusement of clean ing out the various companies he traveled with, and he was not considered by the profession exactly safe to tie to. Hannibal has destroyed mountains of ginger bread given him by our amusement-loving and generous country friends, and his loss will be deeply felt by the enterprising proprietor of the candy stand. Hannibal, at the time of his death, which occurred at McConnellsof his death, which occurred at McConnells-ville, Ohio, a few days since, was traveling with Messrs. Thayer & Noyes' circus and menagerie, but was owned by Van Am-burg. Hannibal was supposed to be about eighty years old, was about thirteen feet high, weighed fifteen thousand pounds, and traveled nearly two hundred thousand miles. He had good traits as well as bad ones, and unlike many of his companions in the show business, he did not drink whisky, nor was he addicted to using to-bacco.

SEVENTEENTH CORPS.—The first division SEVENTEENTH CORPS.—The first division of this corps arrived in the city on Saturday on boats from Parkersburg. This is one of the best fighting corps under the invincible Sherman, the men being mostly from the Western States. The Seventeenth Corps is commanded by Major General Francis P. Blair, who will arrive in this city during the present week. The first division was the present week. The first division was composed of three brigades, the first of which, comprising the Twenty-seventh Ohio, Thirty-ninth Ohio, Eighteenth Missouri, and Sixty-fourth Illinois, is com-manded by Brigadier General J. W. Fuller. The second brigade is about broken up by the muster out of various regiments. The third briade, consistinn of the Seventh Illinois, Twenty-fifth Indiana, Sixty-third Indiana, Sixty-third Ohio, and Forty-third Ohio, is commanded by Brevet Brigadier General John Tillson. The division is commander by Brevet Major General M. F. commander by Brevet Major General M. F. Force, with the following staff officers: Captain Sam. R. Adams, A. A. G.; Lieutenant Henry G. Dwight, A. D. C.; Captain Albert Koehue, Assissant Inspector General; Captain Wm. Hernstreet, Judge Advocate; Captain Wm. Carr, Com. Musters; Major C. C. Kellogg, A. C. S.; Captain E. B. Boyd, A. Q. M.; and Dr. Ross, Surgeon-in-Chief.

An incident, not generally known, oncerning one of the St. Albans raiders, has recently come to light. Immediately after his acquittal one of the raiders, hav-ing little faith in the judge's decision, determined to leave the country. It being unsafe to travel, unless disguised, he bethought himself for a while. The difficulty was perplexing, and time was scarce, if he stopped much longer he would likely be ar-rested, and there were few disguises the lynx-eyed officers of the law had not seen through. An idea, however, struck him. He hired a baby, paying four hundred dollars as security for its safe return. He then dressed himself as a lady and started to Halifax with the child, and for a great part of the way had for an escort the very officer detailed to catch him. He however, gives the detective a very good recommendation for gallantry, for during the trip there was nothing himself or the child needed that the officer of the law did not get for them. He arrived safely in Hulifax and took passage for Europe.

The Hampton Peace Conference.

The Herald's Richmond letter says: At The Herald's Richmond letter says: At the time of the Hampton peace conference the first obstacle in the way of adjustment was the introduction by Davis, contrary to the wishes of Benjamin, of the words, "The two countries," in the preliminary propositions for negotiations with a view to the restoration of peace. The proposition as originally drawn by Benjamin contained the words, "With a view to the restoration of peace to our country," but the last words were stricken out by Davis and the words, "Both countries," substituted.

Instructions to the commissioners embodied this idea as the sole basis upon which died this idea as the sole basis upon which they were to proceed.

The commissioners used all the influence in their power to induce Davis to modify his instructions, so as not foreclose all hope of adjustment, but in vain, he was inflexible in his determination to make reconcilia-tion and independence indispensible to the condition of peace by negotiation. Lady Grace, Parkersburg; Wren, United States, Cincinnati. Lorena, Memp. is. THE RIVER was about stationary yesterday with four feet nine inches water in the canal in the evening by the mark. The recent rains were heavy, though of short du ration, and have materially checked the river from falling. The weather has been cloudy for over forty-eight hours. There was a very heavy fall of rain on Friday night last.

At Cincinnati the river was still receding slowly, with only about five feet water re-ported on Warsaw bar. The St. Charles, heavily laden for this port got aground at Warsaw, but soon got off, and was the Cincinnati packet yesterday, having lost one day by the delay and low water. Our dispatches from Pittsburg of Satur-day note a rise in that quarter, with heavy rains. On the falls last evening there were about 33 inches water in the pass, and several boats have descended the falls bound for Nashville, and Johnsonville, and two new propellers, or tug boats just built, and fur-nished here for Galveston, or Matamoras Texas, departed, descending the Indian chute. These new propellers are a novelty, and are very neat, and unique, built similar to a ship, though small, and raking, having sharp models, and only 65 feet length of keel. Their width, or beam is 16 feet, with no guards but regular sea-going clippers. They draw but about 3 feet water, are very staunch, and have powerful machinery, being designed as tug boats, and lighters over the bars at the mouth of the Rio Grande, and having sufficient power to tow a thousand ton ship up the river. They are screw propellers, named the Rover and Spray, and were fitted out for Capt. Long, of New Orleans, for the Matamoras trade. The machinery was constructed and put up by Ainslie, Cochran & Co., at their famous foundry, who always turn out the most desirable and perfect work. COMMERCIAL OFFICE OF THE LOUISVILLE UNION PRESS, SATURDAY EVENING, June 10, 1865.

WEEKLY REVIEW.

The trade of the city during the week has been very ac ive, especially among dry goods jobbers, and genera nerchandize, while the unusual influx of strangers, coun y merchants and farmers and planters to attend the an ual Tobacco Fair and the races, has filled all the hotels to overflowing, making a heavier retail trade and more general animation than has been observable before for years. Last week it was announced through the Custom House that merchants and buyers from Tennessee and points further South, would have to bring certified copy of trade permits or license, the same to be filed here in the Office of Customs. No permits were required, but bills and invoices were merely stamped. We have since learned that the Custom House officer in Cincinnati has entirely thrown off every restriction, and permits buyers there to make their purchases and shipents wholly unrestricted, requiring no permits and na opy of trade license. Of course the same liberal policy will be observed here, as the Custom House officer here will not let Cincinna i have any ex-clusive privileges detrimental to the commercial interestof Louisville whe can avoid it. Our merchants are fully alive to the true interests of their city, and are determined to fill all orders at as low rates as the goods can be obtaided elsewhere. The great feature of commercial importance during the ast three days has been the exhibition and sales of prenium tobacco. The awards of premiums were made Wednesday, and the sales have been heavy since, commencing at 8 A. M. and not closing until 6 P. M. Thursday. The sale at that house commences to morrow (Saturday) morning. The sales Thursday were 376 hhds, and the sales Friday were 407 hhds, making a total of 783 hhds—two good days' work. The gross renever equaled at any other point on the continent. The obacco is always sold for cash, and the above is a good ound sum to change han's on the product of a single taple article of Kentucky growth and Kentucky com-nerce. The most of the fine tobacco at this sale was purchased by our city buyers and manufacturers. To day considerable choice tobacco was sold, some of it ranging at $50, and a lot of bright Missouri wrapper leaf sold at $61 to $84. The first prenrium for manufacturing leaf was grown in Ballard county, and sold for $155, and the first hhd of cutting lea was grown in Owen county, and sold at $100. The weather had continued excessively warm and dry until Thursday evening, when an unusual heavy rain fell, followed by frequent showers since, materially cooling the atmosphere. The river has fallen to a very low tage, making navigation very difficult along the upper Ohio, and causing a material advance in freights. In addition to which tonnage is very scarce just now, as the Government has taken nearly all the boats for the trans portation of troops, part from Parkersburg to this port for a rendezvous, a portion to Saint Louis, and one entire army corps from Johnsonville, Tennessee river, to New

THE MONEY MARKET-We have nothing of interest to note in monetary affairs, excepting an increased de-mand this week for currency, but the banks have met al demands freely, the rate of interest for good paper being at 9 per cent. New York exchange ranges from 1-10 discount, bu; ing, to 1-10 premium, selling. The gold market has ruled steady all the week, and the rates sustained

ENGRAVING. TO DEALERS IN GENERAL. AND AGENTS

DEAR SIR. Your attention is respectfully called to ur new picture THE MATION'S beautiful engraving, The Last Moments of Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, April 15, 1865."

Throughout the United States.

Copy Right Secured-This beautiful engraving is designed to illustrate the passage of the spirit of the President to Heaven in the company of and b, who are represented as approaching him from the clouds, while in the distance is seen the shade of Washington waiting the appearance of the beavenly escort conveying the spirit of the President to the reward of the just. The for-ground contains, besides the body of our lamented Chief Mugistrate, likenesses of thirteen persons who were present, among whom are some of our prominent statesmen and generals.

No pains have been spared to obtain and secure good and faithful likenesses of each individual represented. The work is executed by Max. Rosenthal, one of the best artists in the country. Size 18x2, and can be seen on rollers, safe from damage, to any part of the cauntry.
